HIS OPENING SPEECH When the Democratic party went into Congress what did it encounter? A solid phalanx of Republicans ready to fight any repeal of the McKinley bill, and innumerable agents of this trust 'obbying and toying in every way to impede them. But after a year's fight the Democratis won.

"The new tariff reduces the tax 11 per cent, from 49 to 38 per cent.

"Now about the income-tax. I am unquestionably in favor of that, and I dare say there are few in this assemblage who will be affected by it. (Laughter.) I was conversing with a gentleman in New York recently who was severely upbraiding Congress for passing the bill. He said that it would result in $30,000,000 being taken from the North and brought to the South annually. I replied that I was rejoiced to know it, as in such an event we would only be getting back a portion of the money we had expended for pensions for northern men."

Colonel Eliett directed his remarks to-ward the iniquity and unjustness of the pension laws, and said that nothing would give him greater pleasure than to be able to assist all that he could to see then reduced within proper bounds. Continu-

g, he said: "As a Democrat, I stand before you to As a Democrat, I stand before you to-day advocating the cause of Democracy, and especially of the Senate tariff bill. I am a tariff reformer, and when it comes to a question of raising many for the support of the government, I would advocate a tariff, but I believe it should be at the lowest rate ad valorem."

SYMPATHY FOR POPULISTS. Colonel Ellett now turned his attention to the Populists, for whom he expressed much sympathy. "I do think they have gone astray," said he, "but by again cooperating with the Democratic party they can retrieve themselves." Judge Gregory's political record, he said, Judge Gregory's political record, he said, was like the Irishman's flea. "I understand," he continued, "that Judge Gregory denies having ever run for office on a Republican ticket. I have been informed to the contrary. He consented to allow his name to go on a Republican ticket, but said that while he did so, he was still a Democrat. This Populist party has some queer people in it. I believe they have twelve representatives and three Senators. These men have introduced bills which, if enacted into laws, would take $50,000,000,000 to carry into effect. There are only $6,000,000,000 in money in the whole world, and I imagine our visionary friends would have a lively time in raising the $50,000,000,000. One of their measures proposes to give $500 to every negro ex-slave, and another proposes to anticipate all of the pensions for the next twenty years. As it is the South is required to pay this party—the Populist party—wants you not only to give the North the $60,000,000 per annum, but to multiply the sixty by twenty and give it all in a lump. Mr. Peffer, another Populist wants to raise the revenue for the support of the government by direct tax support of the government by direct tax on land. This will increase the tax you are now paying five fold."

WHAT CONGRESS DID. The speaker briefly outlined the work done by the Fifty-third Congress, and, in conclusion, said: "To the calm judgment of our fellow-citizens we submit that the Democratic party has stood nobly by the people throughout its en-tire history, and especially in the Fifty-third Congress. In the words of Hon. O. M. Hall, in the House of Representa-tives, 'It has fought the good fight, it has foughed its course, it has kept the faith." finished its course, it has kept the faith. JUDGE GREGORY SPOKE LATER.

Immediately upon the conclusion Colonel Ellett's speech Mr. Ivey aro and declared the meeting adjourned. This fell like a bomb-shell upon the gathering who were awaiting remarks from Judge Gregory. This gentleman jumped up, and demanded to be heard. Judge Cloptor ascended the bench, and announced that he would have to use the court-room for a few moments for legal business and as soon as possible he would turn words, and that over to Judge Gregory. Colonel Ellett explained that Judge Gregory had given thim no intimation that he proposed to enter into a joint debate, and he naturally concluded that he did not care to The Populist candidate, however

I tell you there is sometiming rotter in Denmark."

The Chesterfieldian harped at some length on the clause in his platform, "Equal rights to all, and special privileges to hene." and frequently returning to it, secured some appliance from the negroes in the rear of the court-room. This caused him to continue his efforts, and to speak to them direct. After talking on for some little time, he, in a dramatic fashion, ejaculated, "What I know I know." Why he should have made this statement up one present could just understand, but it had the effect of creating haughter among the negroes, and the Judge repeated it twice.

The publicans and Democrats mixed up were, he said, enough to kill anybody or anything on God's green earth. "The yoters of the two parties are too good."

DANIEL AND OTEY IN RUSTBURG. Both Preach the Doctrines of Democracy

Many Willing Ears. LYNCHBURG, VA., September 10 (Special.)-A great many people gathered at Rustburg, Campbell county, to-day. It was known that Senator Daniel, the orator and statesman, was to deliver an address and that Major Otey, the Democratic nominee for Congress, would speak. It was reported that Colonel John Hampton Hoge, the Republican nominee, would be on hand, and probably Mr. Rucker, the Populist-Prohibitionist candidate. turned out, Colonel Hoge and Mr. Rucker were not there; but it was promised they would be there next court-day. The speaking was held in the court-house, and the meeting was called to order by Mr E. S. Morgan, county chairman. The room was packed to its utmost capacity when Chairman Morgan introduced Major Otey, amid great applause. Major Otey spoke for over an hour, holding the undivided attention of the audience. Referring to the agricultural depression, he called attention to the remedies proposed by the Democratic party, local liberty and home rule, reform of the tariff, reform of the Federal finances, and the re form of the Federal finances, and the reenfranchisement of State banks. He showed how the wooilen schedule of the new tariff bill will save the people of this country $182,000,000, "which," he said, "is enough to purchase all the sheep in the United States, with the wool on their backs, and leave $10,000,000 to spare." Free sugar, under the McKinley bill, was a delusion, and Major Otey proved it by the floures. Major Otey was particularly the figures. Major Otey was particularly happy in showing up how enormous would be the cost to the government and the taxes on the people to carry out the Populist idea of government ownership of railroads. Major Otey spoke about an hour, and as he concluded he gracefully introduced Senator Daniel.

AT HIS BEST. Daniel was at his best. He spoke only an hour and a half, but in that short time he reviewed the great questions of the day with a mastery and eloquence that held the audience spellbound. He an-swered the criticisms on the Senate's slowness by citing the fact that the present tariff bill was passed by the Sen-ate seventy days earlier than any tariff bill ever had been. He defended the Senate bill by showing its great ad-vantages over the original Wilson bill. He attacked the Probibitionists who did not probibit; the Populists, who did not "pop," and on all the great issues of the day—free silver, pensions, tariff, anti-force bill, etc.—preached the doctrines of Demorracy to willing ears. The crowd was large and enthusiastic, and great good was done in the cause of Democracy in this district.

The intense heat on Sunday seriously affected the attendance upon church ser vices, and the Richmond congregations were not so large as usual. Rev. Dr. W. J. Young, of Park-Place Methodist church, preached a special sermon to Rescue Council. Jr. O. U. A. M. His theme was "The Liberty Produced by the Truth." The speaker said that true liberty is always within; that many bondmen had been more truly free than those at liberty; the Jewish servant-maid than Naaman, her master; Christ before Pilate than Pilate himself; Paul before Agrippa or in the shipwreck than those who had him in their power. One of the greatest mistakes of the age is the idea that if we can change the circumstances—the environment of men—all happiness and goodness will follow.

Dr. Young discussed the many cures suggested for the ills of humanity, and concluding said: It is possible to reason eloquently with regard to human greatness without having known the soul's true worth; to prove the existence of God by all the proofs known to philosophers without having had message from His lips;
